UNITED MINERS CELEBRATION.

Enormous Crowd Witnes- sed the Demonstration Which Took Place at Charleroi Yesterday.

Probably one of the largest gatherings ever seen in Charleroi was that which assembled yesterday to witness the cel- bration of the United Mine Workers of the inauguration of the eight hour day. Throngs of jubilant miners flocked in from the surrounding towns and soon the down town streets which were in gala attire were a sea of moving humanity.

This was the 6th event of its kind the miners celebrating it annually. The principal event of the day was the monster parade which was scheduled to start from headquarters at the Hotel Walfred promptly at 10 30 but owing to the im mense crowd and the large number of participants it was 11 o'clock before the long line of men were finally gotten in motion.

The order of march took in the principal streets of the town and bands from many of the adjacent towns furnish- ed music to enliven the event. After the parade addresses were delivered in the Castle Theatre by many of the most prom inent men of the day who are closely connected with the various trade unions. Following the addresses many of which were enthusiastically received the remain der of the day was spent in sight see ing.

F W Carroll was appointed chairman for the day with D H Glunt and J C Michaels acted as secretaries

AT THE THEATRE.

The Critics have agreed and the public has decided, that Theodore Kremer's Twentieth Century melodrama "The Fatal Wedding" which comes to the Monessen opera house Wednesday April 4 is the best melodrama ever written. Last night to-day with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson who are estranged by the divorce court through the evil influence of a wicked woman and can still were The wife who left two children seek ing on the lower East side of Greater New York. The one child, Gussie known as "The Little Mother" She is the main support of the family and the center of attraction at all times. She finally is instrumental in reuniting her and spends a few months at the end of three of the acts at the Grace Church. The scene Grace Church and Tompkins Heights the wedding ceremony is extremely realistic. Another wonderful scene is the snow storm on the heights of the Lower Palisades, a wonderfully executed stage effect

There has never been a play that has received the success "The Fatal Wedding" did in New York, nearly all the origi nal members of the Company remain in their respective roles, including little Gussie Shires, who is practically the star of the organization, and who draws the children on matinee days quite as much as grown people. A surpliced choir of fifty voices contribute to the realism of the Grace Church scene, and is particularly effective.

"WHERE were you on the night of March 19th"? is the burning question in Chattanooga just now.

Taken at His Word.

When Rossetti was a student of art he one day happened to go with some fellow students to the east end of London. There at a wharfside inn he saw an immense canvas on the barroom wall. After laughing at it for some time and thus provoking the innkeeper's wrath the following conversation took place:

"Where did you get that picture?"

"Oh, never mind, young man, where I got it!"

"What price do you set on it?"

"More than you can afford."

"Indeed!" said Rossetti. "Now, how much?"

"Three thousand pounds," replied the innkeeper.

At this there was a loud burst of laughter from the young artists

"Do you know how much I would give you for your £3,000 picture?"

"How much?" asked the innkeeper

"Three pounds," said Rossetti.

"Done," said the innkeeper promptly. And to his amazement and amusement Mr. Rossetti found himself the owner of the colossal daub

Be a Lightning Calculator.

Multiplication is the most important of the fundamental rules of arithmetic In large accounting departments mental arithmetic is often used to a very large extent, and the one who cannot perform this task without resorting to figuring the long way on paper has but a small chance of gaining a position worth having Here is one little lesson in lightning multiplication Supposing you want to multiply 53 by 81 First, multiply units by units thus 4 × 3 are 12, set down the 2 and carry 1. Multiply tens by units and units by tens, adding the 1 to carry to the first product, then add the two products together, thus 4 × 5 are 20 and 1 to carry, 21, and 8 × 3 are 24 and 21 and 24 are 45, set down the 5 and carry 4 Now multiply the tens together and add the 4 you had to carry, thus 8 × 5 are 40, and 4 makes 44 Set this amount down in the answer, and you will have the correct result– 4,452.

Lady Moon

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN

Copyright, 1905, by Ruby Douglas

Outside the stately old mansion the press of carriages was growing almost unmanageable. Within the ripple of soft laughter and waving of many fans, the glitter and glow of diamonds bespoke the fact that Lady Cheynemore had thrown open Little Barrington House for the celebrated tableaux of which all London had been talking for the week past.

The greatest beauties of the season were to pose, well known artists had consented to arrange and drape their lovely models, and "everybody" was there.

Near the door, a little out of the crush, Nigel Anstruther stood and looked about him with the eyes of the man to whom London sights have been strange for the last six years. He was a little amused and a little bored. Society functions were not much in his line. Just back from India on leave, he had run up to town to see one or two old friends, and Honoria Derwentwater, having no spare moment to grant him from her other guests, had suggested his coming on to Lady Cheynemore's.

It was rather a nuisance, but he wanted to get back to the country next morning if possible. And, after all, the color, the lights, the pretty women, were not so bad. Presently he must find Honoria and ask the question that this afternoon's crowd had rendered impossible to put. It was expected of him, he supposed. His people had always hoped for it. And then all at once, by a sudden freak of the imagination, as he glanced about for the fair English face there rose before him the laughing, mischievous eyes of the little American girl who had teased, bewildered and thoroughly enchanted him during those few brief weeks in Simla. Where was she now?

Involuntarily his thoughts wandered back to the day when he had seen her first, dainty and sweet in fluffy white, sitting under a marquee at the viceroy's reception. She seemed such a little thing that he started in surprise when she complained of being unable to secure a really good riding horse. The hands she held out for inspection were absurdly small. Still doubtful, he had yet managed to get for her the best woman's mount to be had in Simla. But the first minute she was up his misgivings vanished. She certainly could ride.

After that every day they were out together exploring the hills, trotting gayly over the smooth, hard roads. Mrs. Wharton, only too glad that Ethel had found some one to go with her, consenting willingly. And every day Anstruther's admiration deepened. If there was one thing he approved most it was a good seat.

The girl's father was dead, and she and her mother, a frail but indomitable spirited woman, were leisurely seeing the world. After stifling in Bombay, they had run up to Simla for the breezes and lingered on, pleased with the queer little town and the Anglo Indian life. It was quite gay all that season. Simla was full, and every day there were dinners, luncheons, teas and picnics.

Would Anstruther ever forget the moonlight picnic he gave? The night had been glorious. Under the soft glow of an Indian moon the hills lay mistily radiant, every leaf on the deodars seeming to stand out with vivid life. Ethel Wharton and Anstruther with several others had gone on horseback, the rest of the party in rickshaws with coolies to carry the provisions. The picnic had been a great success. And then came the ride home. By a mutual though unspoken impulse Anstruther and Ethel had dropped back of the others. Both were conscious of a certain exaltation of mood, a vague excitement due to the influence of the moon—perhaps. Gradually their talk, at first animated and quick, slackened to monosyllables and at last died away.

For several moments they rode on in silence; then, as if oppressed by the stillness, the girl began to sing. To music of her own she had set some words by George MacDonald: "Lady Moon, Lady Moon, where are you roving? Over the sea. Lady Moon, Lady Moon, whom are you loving? All who love me."

Anstruther, listening, was aware of a sudden pang. Was she going over the sea? Would she be going home?

"Lady Moon," he began unsteadily. "Ah, that is you so white, so fair, so perfect! And you, too, will pass from us! What shall we do without your light?"

The girl glanced at him quickly. "Lady Moon, Lady Moon, whom are you loving?" she hummed. Anstruther, his heart suddenly beating fast, leaned forward.

"Do you mean that?" he demanded tensely. "Do you love those who love you? For you know that I, Ethel"—as something in the girl's face made his pulses leap. But, the great crimson waves flooding up over brow and cheek, she touched her horse smartly.

"Come," she said breathlessly, "I'll race your home."

Anstruther went back that night to his quarters, a glad exultation tingling through every vein. She cared, he was sure she cared.

And then the sight of a long, official looking envelope on his table for a moment drove every other thought from his mind. His orders were to report at once. There had been a sharp uprising in the hills. He must take his regiment out without delay, nor could he tell how long his absence might be. With barely time to fling a few necessaries into his kit bag and scratch a hasty note to Miss Wharton he was off.

Three weeks later, returning, tired, bronzed and eager, the first thing to meet his eyes was the note still lying where the forgetful boy had left it. And Miss Wharton and her mother were gone. Ten days ago they had left, he was told. There was no clew by which to follow them; no one knew whither they had departed.

Anstruther, torturing himself with vain imaginings as to what she must have thought of him, nearly went mad. He could hardly sleep. The man grew nervous, irritable, until even the colonel noticed it and recommended a trip home. As a consequence Anstruther now stood in Lady Cheynemore's drawing room and, indifferent to what became of him, waited to ask Honoria Derwentwater to be his wife. After all he had always known Honoria. Probably they would get on as well as most married couples. And the dad would be pleased.

There was a sudden ripple of talk at his side. "Here is the next. What, you have not met her yet? My dear, she is the beauty this season. Just wait and you will see."

Anstruther listened with his tolerant smile. He must try to reach Honoria. But as he stirred all at once the lights were lowered, and he perforce, halted. Well, he could wait until the tableau was over. A faint curiosity, too, was awakened by what he caught from his neighbors. Who was this new beauty? And then he started violently. From the piano came a few bars of prelude oddly familiar. The curtain rose, and the picture stood revealed. In the quick murmur of applause Anstruther's sharp exclamation escaped unnoticed. There, intolded in long, clinging draperies, her lovely hair unbound, one arm thrown negligently up behind the small head, rested his lady, a huge silver crescent seeming to bear her through limitless space. Her face was lifted. Her eyes gazed wistfully into the distance.

"Lady Moon, Lady Moon, where are you roving?" sang the famous soprano, but Anstruther hardly heard. His breath was coming with difficulty; his heart was pounding. So she had not forgotten! Lady Moon, oh, Lady Moon!

As the curtain dropped he turned to the man next him, whom luckily he chanced to have met.

"It—it is Miss Wharton, is it not?" he asked, and as the other nodded a quick gratitude welled up within him. Thank heaven, he was not too late! "Won't you take me back?" he demanded. "It is all right," in answer to a look of surprise. "We—we are old friends. I used to know her in India, and—and there is something I ought to tell her."

The Diplomatic Clerk.

"Henry, you haven't a room left, have you?" inquired a New York drummer of his friend of many years' standing on the other side of the counter of the Chicago hotel.

"Not one," replied Henry, "but I'll look over the rack again and see if I can't find you a place somewhere."

"All right," said the New Yorker while his friend gave the slips his anxious attention. Light broke over his face in a moment, and he came back.

"A man up on the parlor floor gave up his room about an hour ago, but he didn't expect to leave it quite so soon. I'll send up and see if I can't hurry him a little."

The porter's bell was rung, a whispered colloquy took place between Henry and that blue shirted functionary, and in fifteen minutes the man from New York was rejoicing in one of "the best rooms in the house."

But the clerk omitted to inform him that the previous occupant had given up his room at the precise moment when he had given up his life.

Origin of Two Tavern Terms.

The term "entire," so often seen over inns and taverns in England and not always understood by the passersby, is said to have first been used about 1722. Prior to that date the malt liquors in general use were ale, beer and "twopenny." It was usual for tavern customers to call for a pint or tankard of half and half—that is, half ale and half beer, half ale and half twopenny or half beer and half twopenny. In course of time it became customary to call for a tankard of "three threads," meaning a third of ale, beer and twopenny. To save publicans the trouble and waste of turning three taps for one pint of liquor a brewer named Harwood conceived the idea of making a beverage which should unite the flavors of all three drinks. He called his production "entire," or "entire butt beer." As it was considered suitable for porters and other working people, it is said to have obtained the further name of "porter." London News.

Conkling and Thurman.

Senator Roscoe Conkling was once addressing the senate in an impassioned manner and seemed to direct his remarks to Senator Thurman. At length the latter got irritated.

"Does the senator from New York," he roared, "expect me to answer him every time he turns to me?"

For a moment Mr. Conkling hesitated, and everybody expected a terrific explosion. Then, with an air of exquisite courtesy, he replied:

"When I speak of the law I turn to the senator from Ohio as the Mussulman turns toward Mecca. I turn to him as I do to the English common law as the world's most copious fountain of human jurisprudence."

The usually decorous senate broke into a storm of applause, and the Thurman eye moistened a little. The two statesmen were the best of friends and greatly enjoyed each other's society when "off duty."

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
To find relief and cure?
No reason why any reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

One would think the Laxative idea in a cough syrup should have been advanced long before it was. It seems the only rational remedy for Coughs and Colds would be to move the bowels and clean the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs at the same time. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar does this. It is the Original Laxative Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Tastes good and is harmless.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

The tar that is contained in Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar is harmless. It is not coal tar, but is obtained from the pine trees of our own native forests. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar is the best remedy for colds because it acts on the bowels—thus expelling all colds from the system. Bee's is the original Laxative Honey and Tar, and is best for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, lung and bronchial effections. Sold by C. A. Light.

Don't frown—look pleasant. If you are suffering from indigestion or sour stomach, take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Hon. Jake Moore, of Atlanta, Ga., says: "I suffered more than 20 years with indigestion. A friend recommended Kodol. It relieved me in one day and I now enjoy better health than for many years." Kodol digests what you eat, relieves sour stomach, gas on stomach, belching, etc.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

A liquid cold cure for children that is pleasant, harmless and effective is Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. Superior to all other cough syrups or cold remedies because it acts on the bowels. An ideal remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough and all curable lung and bronchial effections in child or adult. Pleasant to take. Sold by C. A. Light.

If you are troubled with Piles and can't find a cure, try Witch Hazel Salve, but be sure you get that made by E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago. It is the Original. If you have used Witch Hazel Salve without being relieved it is probable that you got hold of one of the many worthless counterfeits that are sold on the reputation of the genuine De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

The gums and resins obtained from pine trees have long been recognized as highly beneficial in the treatment of backache, kidney and bladder troubles. Pine-ules is the name of a new medicine, the principle ingredients of which come from the pine forests of our own native land. Sold by C. A. Light.

Mothers everywhere praise One Minute Cough Cure for the sufferings it has relieved and the lives of their little ones it has saved. A certain cure for coughs, croup and whooping cough. Makes breathing easy, cuts out phlegm, and draws out the inflammation. It should be kept on hand for immediate use.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

It is not difficult to relieve blind bleeding, itching or protruding piles with Mar Zan, the great pile remedy. It is put up in collapsible tubes with nozzle, and may be introduced and applied at the seat of the trouble. Stops pain instantly. Sold by C. A. Light.

Indigestion is much of a habit. Don't get the habit. Take a little Kodol Dyspepsia Cure after eating and you will quit belching, puffing, palpitating and frowning. Kodol Digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

For bloating, belching, indigestion, etc., eat a Ring's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals. Sold by C. A. Light.

The best safeguard against headache, constipation and liver troubles is De Witt's Little Early Risers. Keep a vial of these famous little pills in the house and take a dose at bedtime when you feel that the stomach and bowels need cleansing. They don't gripe.—Sold by R. W. Beck.

Salve! Salve! Spread the Salve, but let it be Pine Salve, natures remedy for cuts, burns, sores, etc. Sold by C. A. Light.

Diphtheria, sore throat croup. Instant relief, permanent cure. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. At any drug store.

For headache, constipation, etc., Dade's Little Liver Pills are the best. They cleanse and tonic the liver. Sold by C. A. Light.

WEBSTER NOTES.

Wm. Fitch spent Sunday in Roscoe circulating among friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Couch are the parents of a new baby boy which arrived yesterday.

Miss Nora Gillingham spent a part of yesterday in town with her parents, returning to Lock 4 last evening.

J. P. Speilman and Clemens Mihm, the pop men of Monessen, were transacting business in town yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Osborne left yesterday for Bismark, N. Dakota, where they will visit friends, later taking up their residence in Colorado.

The school board held a meeting this morning, no business of importance being transacted with the exception of signing several permanent certificates.

Mrs. Hugh McKeever, of Sunnyside, died yesterday morning of spinal meningitis. Deceased leaves a husband and four children. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

A slight blaze in a house belonging to the Budd Coal Co. and occupied by Harrison Biles, at the lower end of town, caused considerable excitement yesterday about 4 o'clock. The fire, which started on the roof, was first discovered by Harry Feeby, a boarder, who with the assistance of several others, extinguished the flames, after a hole had been burned in the roof, causing damages to the extent of about $50.00. Sparks from a passing engine are thought to have caused the blaze.

The mines here are all at a standstill, notwithstanding the fact that the Pittsburg Coal Co. have signed the 1903 scale. The miners were to have gone to work yesterday, but it seems enough of them could not be gotten together to start operations. They held a meeting today for the purpose of deciding their future actions. It is the general belief that the Equitable mine will start at once, but much depends on the convention at Pittsburg, today at which all the local mines are presented.

Tailor Shop Purchased.

Anton Fisher, the well known tailor, who has formerly been located in the New Bank building, corner of Fifth and Donner, has purchased the business of John Kromarek, the Schoonmaker avenue tailor and took charge yesterday. Mr. Fisher contemplates many improvements and will in future conduct a first class tailoring establishment in every particular. Since purchasing the new stand he has added to his stock of woolens and now is prepared to show the seasons latest fabrics and patterns.

The business will be continued in the room, formerly occupied by Kromarek.

Was Mistaken.

In a match game at California Thursday evening "Dad" Hawthorn, of California, rolled the remarkable high score of 280, no doubt the highest score ever made in the Monongahela Valley.—Charleroi Daily Mail.

The writer is probably unaware of the fact that Frank Boninnie, of Monessen, rolled the phenominal high score of 300 a year ago. If you meant the highest score in a match game, why didn't you say so?

Vaccination, compulsory under the state school laws, was the primary cause of the death of Beatrice Bausonville, five years old, who died yesterday morning at the home of her parents in Pittsburg.

A special meeting of the Lady Maccabees will be held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Wireback on Donner avenue. All members are requested to be present. By order of Lady Commander J. Harris.
